Section B Required: Yes No

The criteria for disability discharge and borrowing again after disability discharge are outlined in the Federal Student Aid Handbook, <https://ifap.ed.gov/fsahandbook/attachments/1920FSAHbkVol1Ch3.pdf>, pp. 63-64. You are encouraged to review these federal regulations before applying for a new loan. Following is a brief summary:

A Total and Permanent Disability (TPD) means that you are unable to engage in substantial gainful activity by reason of a medically determinable physical or mental impairment that can be expected to result in death; has lasted for a continuous period of at least 60 months; can be expected to last for a continuous period of at least 60 months; or has been determined by the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) to be unemployable due to a service-connected disability.

The phrase “substantial gainful activity” means a level of work performed for pay that involves doing significant physical or mental activities or a combination of both. If a physician’s certification does not appear to support this status, the school should contact the physician for clarification.

Borrowers whose previous federal student loans were discharged are monitored by the U. S. Department of Education (ED) for three years. If the borrower fails to meet certain eligibility requirements throughout the monitoring period, ED reinstates the borrower’s obligation to repay the discharged loan/s. If the loan/s on which repayment obligation is reinstated was in default status at the time of discharge, it remains in default upon reinstatement, and the student must make satisfactory repayment arrangements before receiving the new loan.

If a borrower whose prior loan was discharged due to a total and permanent disability wishes to borrow another federal student loan, he/she must obtain a physician’s certification that he/she has the ability to engage in substantial gainful activity, and must sign a borrower statement acknowledging that the new loan cannot later be discharged for any present impairment unless it deteriorates so that he/she is again totally and permanently disabled.

For status information on potentially discharged loans, you may contact ED’s TPD servicer (Nelnet) at

Notes:

1. The student must sign a new acknowledgment (Section A of this form) for the school each time he/she receives a new loan after a disability discharge.
2. The physician’s certification (Section B of this form) is required only once before the student may borrow new federal student loans after a disability discharge. The school will maintain this certification in the student’s files.
